BRENSKI'S DEATH DUE TO AN ACCIDENT

It is now intimated that Andy Brenski whose body was found in Johnson's run in Arnold City near the Federal morning met his death by falling over the bank and striking his head with such force as to render him incapable of helping himself. He fell into the water which at that point is quite shallow and it is possible that the man was drowned. He was aged 38 years, was a well-to-do miner and leaves a wife and five children.

Rev. G. W. Snodgrass, a former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Charleroi now located at Buffalo Village this county accompanied by his family were visiting with Charleroi friends over night.

Request Is Made By Fuel
Administration to Conserve Gasoline

PUBLIC EXPECTED TO COMPLY

On Tuesday the Fuel Administration met at Washington called on the public east of the Mississippi river to stop using gasoline for passenger automobiles, motorcycles and motorboats on Sundays until further notice. Unless voluntary action improves the gasoline situation, notice is given that the administration will enforce prohibitory regulations.

This action was decided on by Fuel Administrator Garfield and Oil Director Requa as a precaution against a threatened shortage of gasoline for overseas shipment. Mr. Requa said it was not likely the restriction would be necessary for many Sundays.

Automobiles for hire, including taxicabs, are included in the class of motor vehicles that are expected to observe the request.

The following exceptions to the request are made:

Tractors and motor trucks engaged in hauling of freight, physicians' automobiles, ambulances, fire and police apparatus, public utilities, repair wagons, gasoline railway equipment and motor vehicles used by persons living in rural communities without other means of transportation.

The fuel administration also makes an appeal to "the patriotic men and women of America east of the Mississippi River to undertake voluntarily, additional conservation in the operation of their own automobiles wherever possible.

Clayton Ross Wylie, of Pittsburg, now employed as an engineer on the steamer Vesta, has purchased property at Lock No. Four and expects to make his home at that place in the future.

Carson a brother of the guest of honor and C. P. Daubenspeck, D. P. Stuart, William Dunn and Ray Maple who are at work drilling a gas well in that locality.

The scene of festivities were located near the derrick, the well providing sufficient amount of gas to illuminate the surroundings. The hosts had erected a fine swing, which was in constant operation all evening, as well as a large table which was necessary to hold the abundance of good things that had been provided for the entertainment of the guests. SAID MAN WAS IN COMPANY OF GIRL

Some new developments have come to light about the suicide which it now appears to be of the Plummer girl on the Fairhope pike, just outside of Fayette City, some time Monday night.

It is said the girl was in Monessen that evening, being accompanied by her sister, and they left for up-river on the last car. They crossed the river from Allenport and it is intimated they met with a man who is referred to as "Bill," who started with the girl as she left for her father's home at Naomi. On the way they had some differences, when the girl pulled the revolver and shot herself. The body was taken to the home of her father in Naomi from where the funeral will be held.

RAILROAD COURTESY

Some years ago the managers of railroads proved to their own satisfaction that courtesy was a paying investment. They found that it was even profitable to go far out of their way to accommodate their patrons. Accordingly, they required every considerable measure of courtesy to be shown the public by employees in every branch of the railroad service.

Why any railroad employee should have deemed it expedient to return to the old negligent policy is not easily explained. Yet reversion to a discredited type of railroad manners has come about to such an extent that the director general of railroads, Mr. McAdoo, has felt it incumbent upon him to condemn this objectionable attitude toward the public. Complaints have reached him, he says, that patrons of the railroads are not now being treated with the same consideration that was shown under private management of the lines, and that employees have sought to excuse their own shortcomings in this respect by the explanation that the objectionable change is due to government control.

The public, as Mr. McAdoo says, has accepted cheerfully and patriotically the additional cost of travel and of freight service due to the recent heavy wage increase granted to railroad workers. He is right, therefore, in thinking that "the least every employee can do in return is to serve the public courteously, faithfully and efficiently."

The public has the right to expect service of this desirable sort regardless of whether the management of the railroads is in the hands of private interests or of the government. The public pays the freight. In paying for service it pays for courteous service. Government management certainly furnishes no reasonable excuse for a change in this respect—Washington Daily News.

TERMS OF PEACE

Senator Lodge, now the Republican floor leader in the United States senate, in a speech delivered in that body on Friday last, gave expression to his views, and which are the Republicans, of the terms which should be when the allies shall come to make peace with the Germans. He outlined them as follows:

Restoration of Belgium.
Restoration of Alsace-Lorraine in France, not from sentimental reasons alone, but to deprive Germany of the coal and iron from Lorraine.
Restoration of Italia Irredenta, including Trieste, to Italy.
Re-establishment of Serbia and Rumania as independent states.
Security for Greece.
Establishment of the Jugo-Slavs and Czech-Slovaks as independent people.
Independence for Poland.
Restoration to Russia of provinces taken from her by the treaty of Brest-Litovsk.
Relinquishment of Constantinople by the Turks and establishment of the Dardanelles as a free international waterway.

"Such a victory," said Senator Lodge, "must be won inside, not outside the German frontier. It must be won finally and thoroughly in German territory and can be won nowhere else."

The German press is furious over these terms, but they will not be modified. They will be added to, for Germany will have some heavy scores to pay, not only for the wrongs done to the people of Belgium and France but for her practical actions on the high seas. Her day of reckoning is rapidly approaching.

AN AWAKENING

It is said the German people are beginning to realize that an invasion of their country is the inevitable outcome of the entry of the United States into the great world war. The continued retreat of the German army since the 14th of July has finally "got on their nerves," for they are being slowly informed of what is going on along the western battle line, in spite of the camouflage of the German press to make every retreat of the German army aviority.

The German army passed to the defensive last month, when the weight of the American army permitted Gen. Foch to assume the offensive. The German people are likewise passing to the defensive. Germany is realizing the Kaiser cannot win the war. Evidence is accumulating that Von Hindenberg's retreat before Marshal Foch's insistent attacks is becoming known among the German people for its true significance.

The German government has taken to the defensive by making known to the people the fact that over a million American soldiers are now in France. Other evidence accumulates that the German plunders are pouring into the hands of the enemy, making it clear to the true state of affairs and that behind the long defensive lines along the Rhine must be constructed to defend the fatherland against the combined strength of the allied armies. However the allies will not be deceived long. It may not be possible to reach the Rhine river this fall, but next season's campaign will undoubtedly see the strength of France, of Great Britain and of America pounding at the crossings of the Rhine and preparing for an invasion of the German empire.

It is a day Germany never expected to see, but it is a situation she must face and that at an early date.

CRACKING

Mr. Simonds, in his review of the war published Tuesday morning, gives this advice: "Watch the flanks, keep track of the prisoners and guns taken; by contrast, pay relatively little attention to the ground gained in front of the Hindenburg line; this is the advice all military commentators are giving today."

In other words we are not to count victories by square miles of territory so much as we are by prisoners and guns taken and plenty of them are being taken from the Germans today by the British and French armies. The Hun lines of cracking; they are not holding as expected, although they are fighting fiercely at times. Haig, however, is giving them no rest but is pushing the British army after them relentlessly. The French are doing the same thing, while the Americans are comparatively quiet. However, there is an important task for the Yanks to perform. They are going to "clean up." When the time comes for them to go in, they will be fresh while the Germans will be worn and weary from constant battle. As the review puts it, the present hour is the best since the war began for the Allied cause. It holds out great present possibilities. It insures ultimate military decision over the enemy absolutely and unqualified.

ALL RICE

The line passed slowly between the rail and the counter, at the Food Administration cafeteria. Here was a petty officer, in starched "whites," behind him two captains from the Q. M. down the street, and girls—lines of them, reaching out for salads and little brown casseroles.
At the trays of breads, the petty officer hesitated. One was piled high with muffins—suspiciously white looking. He started to take one, then asked the woman behind the counter, "All wheat?"
"All rice," she replied.
He helped himself and went on.
After him, the tall captain absently took a muffin, then he looked up guiltily. "All wheat?"
"No, all rice."
And once again the question, from a girl in dainty pink gingham, with paper cuffs fastened on with rubber bands. "All rice?" At the reply she smiled. "Oh," she said, and took her muffin.

Rather surprising; but the patrons of the cafeteria have come to feel that whatever is served them there is "all right." They trust the management to exercise its food conscience in their behalf. When they saw those light muffins, their confidence was shaken. But they went ahead, knowing that they could trust the cooks when they heard "all rice."

THE KAISER'S SAFETY

Kaiser Wilhelm is reported to have said that he would blow up the royal family of England, if it suited his purpose to do so; when his troops were in China during the Boxer rebellion a number of the higher officials were executed because it happened to suit Von Waldersee, the Kaiser's representative and who was there in charge of German troops to see that the will of Emperor William was carried out. He has approved of the bombing of London and Paris and other cities outside the zone of battle and he has caused his airmen to destroy Red Cross hospitals and to fire on the Red Cross flag, at the same time using that sacred emblem for protection to some of his snipers.

Now that the day of reckoning is approaching he may begin to realize that the Allies may just be as careless of his safety and his life as well as those of his immediate family, as he has been of those of other people. When the full program of the allied armies shall be under way, with all the co-ordinated branches working in harmony, the day for the end of the war will not be far away. And Allied soldiers are not going to be particular for the safety of the All-Highest But, and will be as reckless in the use of bombs in his vicinity as it is possible for them to be. The vengeance which the Kaiser in his days of supreme autocracy visited upon others is likely to be turned against him and if it should come to such a pass that long defensive lines along the Rhine will be no more than a long the Allies, and possibly very few among his own people.

MUST REPORT ANY CHANGE IN STATUS

Registrants who for any reason have been granted deferred classification, once the cause is removed are required by the selective service regulations to make immediate report to the local board, under whose jurisdiction they may be. Many registrants are ignorant of this provision, but their ignorance will not excuse them if the facts are reported to the proper authorities. Section 116 of the selective service regulations dealing with the change of status reads as follows: "Every registrant shall, within five days after the happening thereof, report to his local board any fact which might change or affect his classification. Failure to report change of status as herein required or making a false report is a misdemeanor punishable by one year's imprisonment."

BENEFIT GAME FOR CO. A TOBACCO FUND

A benefit ball game to raise money for the "Company A Tobacco Fund," will be played at Quinn Park, New Eagle Friday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. The opposing teams will be Fayette City and Monongahela, and it is expected to be an interesting contest. Arch Osborne will pitch for Monongahela, with "Hooks" Urban at second and Jack Dawson playing an outfield position. As the game is being played in the evening it is expected there will be a large attendance as it comes at an hour when all those so desiring can attend.

CONTROLLER WRITES TO THE ASSESSORS

County Controller Thomas J. Underwood is mailing a letter to the assessors of the county which is self-explanatory. It is the opinion that the letter was prompted by remarks made by County Commissioner John O. Watson, at the recent convention of the assessors, relative to the action of the controller in cutting down the bills as submitted by assessors, for work done by them. The letter is as follows:

To the Assessors of Washington county. Dear Sirs:

It is not my purpose to harass or embarrass the assessors of Washington county by cutting a few days off their time, rather I would be pleased to add to their time if permitted to do so, providing however their work was done "honestly and conscientiously." Some of the cuts made by me on assessors were for the very reason I had personal knowledge of them not being on the "job," or charging the county for a day's work where they worked in some instances only one hour.

You hold a very important office in my estimation, that of "placing value." You should know said value by personal observation and to get same requires time and I appreciate the fact that means money, for which you should be paid and that on the same basis you would expect of a man working for you 100 cents for a dollar's worth of work.

When you are in Washington come to my office and make yourself at home, and when you make out your bill and swear to same for services rendered, get every dollar coming to you but not a cent more thus saving me the embarrassment of having to cut you.

Respectfully yours,
T. J. Underwood,
County Controller.

FORMER CITIZEN KILLED IN BATTLE

The Evening Telegram of Tarentum, dated August 20th, tells of the death of Robert Pilston, a Machine gunner, who died a hero's death on the field of battle in France. He was Tarentum's first contribution to the death list in the great war, and at the time was serving in a Canadian regiment. He was a former resident of Charleroi and was a brother of George Pilston now living here and who is employed at the plate works. The Telegram said:

"Private Robert Pilston, son of Mrs. Mary Pilston of 215 Ross street has made the supreme sacrifice in the great war for the democracy of the world. Official notice of his death was delivered to Mrs. Pilston announcing that her son had been killed August 9.

"Robert Pilston was the first Tarentum boy to enlist and he is the first to be killed in action. He was 34 years of age and prior to his enlistment was employed as a machinist by the Allegheny Foundry and Machine company at Glassmere. He was widely and favorably known and the news of his death will be received with deep regret by his many friends in the valley.

"He enlisted in the Scottish Borderers, 115th battalion of the Canadian Army one month before the United States declared war on Germany. He went to France shortly afterward. His last letter home was written on the 21st of July which was in a very cheerful vein and in which he promised to send his mother a picture of his machine gun squad."

CHARLEROI BOY SERVING IN ITALY

Mrs. Jennie Davis of 708 Washington avenue, is in receipt of a letter from her son, Private Harry Davis a member of Co. B, 332nd Infantry, now in Italy, where his regiment is on service with the American Expeditionary Forces. He says: "Dear Mother—Just a line to let you know that our Company has been transferred to Italy. We were in a parade and reviewed by the King of Italy this morning. A couple of moving picture men were present, so I presume you will be able to see the films in America very soon. We are the first American troops in Italy, and we made a good showing.

"The weather is sure hot here; we can see the mountains quite plain. We were riding through them for a while and we sure have seen some beautiful scenery. I like this place better than France. Have seen more in the few days we have been here than I did in England or France.

"We have a Y. M. C. A. here and we can buy candy and a few other things. We buy fruit from wagons along the street.

"The last place we were in France we saw train load after train load of American soldiers going to the front. They were singing and appeared to be as happy as if going to a picnic at home.

"Over here people have different opinions of the war, just as they have at home. You folks get more war news than we do. We hope to be on the move before long, as this place is both hot and dry.

Private Harry Davis,

WILL SPEED UP MAIL TO FRANCE

Letters from the eastern states to the trenches in France in seventeen days is the promise made by Representative Isaac Siegel of New York, who is in France investigating the delay to soldiers' mail from home. He said that a new postal regiment will henceforth handle all mail matter which in future, will arrive at four instead of two French ports.

Mail trains will meet all steamships and all kinds will be hastened to the persons to whom they are addressed. Mail for the men in the American army in France will be received on board steamships in American ports up to the time of steaming. The mail probably will be sorted during the voyage and every American division in France will have a staff of experienced postal clerks to take care of the distribution of the mail as soon as it reaches the country.

Mr. Siegel said that twenty per cent of the mail to the soldiers in France from the United States is misdirected. It is the business of the home folks to rectify this, he declared. After talk with the men at the front, Mr. Siegel also urged the folks at home to write oftener and to send cheering news instead of the "worrying to death because we haven't heard" stuff. The changes in the system of handling the mail for men will become operative in about a month.

DIFFICULTIES DO NOT STOP MINE

There is some sort of a difference at the Johnson coal mine up Speers run near Belle Vernon, according to the Enterprise. Some time ago it is said the Rocker-Dunn Coal company agreed to take out the coal on royalty. They hired Andy Kos as foreman and he hired men to work and boarded them. It is alleged Andy demanded a large sum for his services or he would quit and take his men with him. The government was notified and sent a man to the premises to make an investigation.

Another version is that Andy was doing his part, when the company got into financial difficulties and Andy helped them with the payroll. Then the company hired McNeal & Co. to bring a steam shovel on the ground and Andy was out of a job. In the meantime it is said the mine is running.

FAREWELL FOR REGISTRANT

of the party entertained themselves by watching the drilling operations and in other ways until the dinner was announced and then all the guests gave their specific attention to the menu. Plates of fried chicken, stacks of steamed corn on the cob, as well as the "trimmings" provided a repast which was more than abundant for the needs of all who were present. It was indeed enjoyable in every way, the only note of regret being that the guest of honor was soon to leave for military training in the south.

Those who were present were Alex S. Carson, E. W. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Sharpnack and daughter Dorothy, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse F. Carson, Fred Carson, Mrs. Ross Carson, Alexander Carson, Harry Clell Carson, Harry F. Carson, Mrs. Harry Carson, Miss Margaret Urash, Miss Mary Gross, Elmira Province, Mrs. Samuel Work, Mrs. Lott Winnett, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carson, Raymond Carson, Lawrence Carson, Louis Carson, Harold Beazell and Mrs. C. E. Carson.

IF THEY GET ME GET ONE FOR ME

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24—When David Thomas, a 17 S. Marine from Billings, Mont., finished out his four years as a sea-soldier, he bade farewell to his bunkie, Joseph S. Wilkes of Salt Lake City, whom he had induced to enlist in the devil dog outfit. "You go to school, Dave," said Joe. "I will get you a Hun. But if they get me, it is up to you to get one for me."

ALL NERVOUS WOMEN

May Benefit by the Remedy Mrs. Little Recommends for Nervousness.

Whitman, Mass.—"I suffered from a nervous, rundown condition and loss of strength so it was hard for me to get around and do my work. After other medicines had failed to help me Vinol restored my health and strength and I heartily recommend it to any one suffering from a nervous run-down condition."—Mrs. R. M. Little.

There is no secret about Vinol. It owes its success to beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous body building tonics. We strongly recommend it. Pipers Drug Store and druggists everywhere.

ROOT AND HERB MEDICINES

Indian medicine men contend that the roots and herbs of the field furnish a panacea for every ill to which human flesh is heir. Be that as it may, it is interesting to note that the most successful remedy in the world for female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was compounded more than forty years ago by Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., from the roots and herbs of the field and today it is recognized from shore to shore as the standard remedy for female ills.

Athletic Doug' Jumps At Chance to Make Liberty Loan Movie

EVERY motion picture theater in the United States is expected to show a special Liberty Loan movie every night of the fourth drive, which will last from September 28 to October 19.

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.

The scenarios for the pictures were written by the best talent in the country, a great number by prominent editors and the rest by scenario writers of the big studios collaborating with the stars themselves. In every case the guiding thought was to give the audiences a real story as well as the message of the Liberty Loan. Requests were sent out to the stars a few weeks back and the response has been so general that no star of any magnitude has failed to make at least one picture. Three thousand copies of the pictures will be in circulation at the same time during the three weeks and the plan contemplates each house showing a different picture each night. Douglas Fairbanks, true to the dash and speed he invariably shows in his pictures, "hurled" into the New York offices with one of the first acceptances of the invitation to make a picture. And his picture was one of the first made.

WHAT YOUR WAR DOLLARS CAN DO

The attention of owners of Liberty Bonds is called to the following. They are financing the work:

On one day in June approximately 27,000,000 cartridges of various descriptions were produced in the United States manufacturing plants for the United States government.

The daily average production of United States army rifles was broken in the week ending June 29, an average of 10,142 rifles a day of a modified Enfield and Springfield type being maintained. In addition spare parts equivalent to several thousand rifles and several thousand Russian rifles were manufactured.

The ordnance department has produced 2,014,315,584 cartridges, 1,886,789 rifles, and 82,840 machine guns since the United States entered the war. The daily output of cartridges is now 15,000,000.

All this is being done with the money loaned the government in the First, Second and Third Liberty Loans. The money borrowed in the Fourth Loan, coming next month, will carry on and increase this necessary work.

With Sordid Gold

To think that I
With sordid gold
May help that line
In France to hold!
That money I have laughed about,
The little bit I have saved out
And tucked away,
May help That Flanders line
Where Freedom fights is partly mine
Since yesterday.
I used to scorn
Wealth and its toil,
A paltry race
For a future goal!
I scorned the talk of a rainy day:
I would not throw my years away
To garner goods.
Oh, I did not know what gold is worth,
When it's raining death on the tortured earth
Of Flanders woods.

LOANS TO OUR ALLIES

FIRST OF THE SUFFRAGETS

Tracts Recently Found Prove That English Women Sought Votes Many Years Ago.

The title of a tract in a recent catalogue published at London, England, merits notice. It is "Hey, Hoe, for a Husband; or The Parliament of Maides; Their Desires, Decrees, and Determinations. The principal members are Mrs. Beatrice Blinks, Mrs. Sarah Seie Woman, Mrs. Margaret Maudrining, Mrs. Priscilla Prick-Song, Mrs. Dorothy Doewell, Mrs. Tabitha Triptoe, 4to, 1647." It begins as follows:

"Not able any longer to forbear the very many inconveniences, occasioned by the general backwardness of men, who contrary to the law of God and nature, are wooed to that which in-struct (were they not degenerate) would prompt them to proffer; we the maids and virgins of Great Britain have thought fit, to the end a speedy remedy of this evil may be attained, to choose members fit and able to sit in parliament," etc.

So apparently the demand for "votes for women" did not originate with Mill. Another tract is as follows:

"A parliament of ladies, with their laws newly enacted, 1647," and Mr. Barnard states that the title to the first edition, issued in 1640, is:

"The parliament of women. With the merry laws by them newly enacted. To live in more ease, pompe, pride and wantonness; but especially that they might have superiority and domineer over their husbands."

USED A LITTLE DIPLOMACY

Detroit Wife Got Everything She Wanted and Wasted Only a Short Time in Argument.

"Of course, you can't possibly afford a new bonnet for me?"

"Not at present, my dear."

"And I presume a new gown is absolutely out of the question?"

"That's true, just at this time."

"I suppose so. And a few simple dresses would cost too much?"

"I was hoping that you could get along without them. I need all the money I have in my business right now."

"That's what I thought. You can't possibly afford to buy the things I absolutely need. So far as I am concerned you must be very economical."

"Say, what are you driving at?"

"But you can afford to go on the board of commerce cruise and spend as much money as you like on your own selfish entertainment."

"O, I see. Well, since I've made my reservation, perhaps you might just as well go down and order those things you need. There are circumstances that alter cases."—Detroit Free Press.

For the Earache.

"I am afraid I have greatly interfered with my own practice," said a celebrated aurist, "by giving the following advice to many of my friends: At the first symptoms of earache, let the patient lie on the bed with the painful ear uppermost. Fold a thick towel and tuck it around the neck; then with a teaspoon fill the ear with warm water. Continue doing this for 15 or 20 minutes; the water will fill the ear orifice and flow over on the towel. Afterwards turn over the head, let the water run out, and plug the ear with warm glycerin and cotton. This may be done every hour until relief is obtained. It is an almost invariable cure and has saved many cases of acute inflammation. The water should be quite warm, but not too hot."—From the Family Doctor.

Fell Victim to Octopus.

A tragedy of the coast, the rough portion of western Tasmania, has been cleared up by a discovery by two young men, Ginnon and Cooper, at Cornwall. They caught a monster octopus twelve feet six inches long, three feet thick from chest to back, and three feet across the back, and on opening the stomach found a man's shirt inside. The shirt was similar to that known to have been worn by a miner, Richard Shaw Burke, who was lost on the coast several months ago, and supposed to have been swept from Trumpeter rock, 80 yards distant from where the octopus was killed. The octopus is the largest known on the west coast of Tasmania.

Yes, He Remembered.

Charlie is the cashier of a country bank. He and May were engaged to be married, but a quarrel separated them and the ring was handed back. "And, remember, please," May added, "that when next we meet we do so as perfect strangers."

A few days later May entered Charlie's bank and presented a check for payment. Charlie took the check and examined it critically and then, instead of cashing it he handed it back.

"I'm so sorry," he said, "but it's against the rules of this bank to cash checks for perfect strangers. You must find some one in town to identify you."

Panama Canal.

It is more than probable the building of the Panama canal would never have been possible but for the discovery—by Dr. Jesse Lazear of the United States army who, by the way, sacrificed his life while making the experiments leading to the discovery—that yellow fever was transmitted by the bite of the deadly stegomyia mosquito. But for that wonderful and timely discovery the mortality, and attendant misery, of the fever would have been a handicap too great to have been borne.

Broken Screw.

To remove a screw with one side of the head broken off, place the screwdriver against one side of the head and with a small block press firmly against the screwdriver, at the same time turning the screwdriver and the block. The screw will come out almost as easily as if the head was intact.

One Mother Too Many.

A pleasant adventure, one that is usually reserved to much younger daughters, has happened to Mlle. Mistinguette, of the opera, Paris, France. She has been reclaimed as a long-lost daughter by a woman of Bergerolles, whose daughter disappeared sixteen years ago, and whom she affirms she recognizes in the distinguished artist. Mlle. Mistinguette has a good heart. She would like nothing better than to recognize the maternity of this honorable dame, but unfortunately she already has an authentic mother, and at this time of life cannot accept the luxury of a supplementary mamma.

Shortest Statutes on Record.

The old parliament of the Scots was noted for its short and pithy statutes. Apparently Scotsmen in the olden times, if their critics are loth to credit them with wit and humor, believed that brevity was the soul of legislation. For instance an old Scottish parliament passed an act which said simply "no man shall enter any place where there is hay with a candle unless it be in a lantern," which is probably the shortest statute ever passed. In fact, one small volume is enough to hold over two centuries of Scotch legislation, and one has never heard that the country was the sufferer thereby.

Disclaimed Responsibility.

A Dutchman was going to cross a bridge. He was riding in a little cart drawn by a goat. The toll man came out and said: "Here, you've got to pay toll before you can pass this bridge."

"What to pay toll?"

"Yes, five cents to cross this bridge."

After an argument the Dutchman paid the five cents and went on. In the afternoon he came back again, only this time he had the goat sitting on the seat, and he was dragging the cart himself.

Out came the toll man and said: "Here, you know you've got to pay five cents."

The Dutchman shook his head, and pointing to the goat, said: "Don't talk to me—ask the driver."

GOLDEN AGE OF SPINSTERS

At This Day, and Hour in America, is the "Ancient Mayde" to Be Seen at Her Very Best.

That this is the golden age of the spinster no one will deny, and that America furnishes the soil in which these hardy plants put forth their freest bloom is equally indisputable, writes Agnes Repplier in the Century Magazine. How many years have passed since the "ancient maydes" of Boston—which term included all unmarried women older than twenty-five—were pronounced by John Dunton to be a "dismal spectacle?" How many years since a few "acute and ingenious gentlewomen" in colonial Virginia had the temerity to remain single and cultivate their own tobacco plantations, for which unnatural behavior they were subjected to repeated "admonishments?"

Now the "ancient mayde" flaunts her freedom in the faces of those who are patiently doing their duty to the world. Now if a woman runs a successful apple orchard or dairy farm, her exploits are heralded far and wide, and other women write exultant papers about her, intimating that the day of the man agriculturist is virtually over. I am not sure that the attitude of our great-grandfathers, who jealously and somewhat fearfully guarded their prerogatives, was not more flattering to my sex than this enthusiasm evoked by achievements which in a man would not be found worthy of notice.

NOT ALTOGETHER PIOUS WISH

Gardener's Appeal for the Elevation of Mrs. Stowe Did Not Mean Desire for Her Happiness.

Recalling the days when the literary colony at Hartford, Conn., was acquiring fame, Dr. Joseph H. Twichell used to tell an amusing incident in the friendship of Harriet Beecher Stowe and Mark Twain.

The Stowe and the Clemens premises were separated only by a fence, close to which, directly in the rear of the Stowes' house, was Mark Twain's large conservatory.

Mrs. Stowe, ever a passionate lover of flowers, availed herself thankfully and liberally of his invitation to make free with its contents, much to the annoyance of the gardener, for she had a careless way of breaking off flowers from the stalk that vexed his soul.

When he made complaint of this habit Mr. Clemens had numbers of pairs of scissors put at intervals here and there on the conservatory shelves, trusting that Mrs. Stowe would see and use them on her visits to it. But they seemed to escape her notice, and she continued to go on as before, till at length the distressed gardener begged Mark Twain to lock the door and keep her out.

But no; he told the poor fellow that whatever she did the place must always be open to her and her liberty in it unrestrained. "At that the much-tried man fervently exclaimed: 'I wish the old lady was in Heaven!'"

Pain of Wounds.

There is a great deal of misapprehension as to the intensity of the pain caused by the entrance into the human body of various objects. Many persons fancy that if a man is shot at all he must therefore suffer intensely. The reverse is true. A slight wound, a mere abrasion of the skin, is sometimes far more painful than a wound caused by the entrance of a bullet directly into the muscles or even into a bone. The skin is filled with nerves and when any of them are torn by the ball the pain is extreme. If the bullet plunges directly through the skin into the body the only nerves affected are those in the comparatively small space the bullet strikes. Since there are few nerves in the muscles the nerves of the skin convey the sensation of pain to the brain. In the same way the greater portion of the pain experienced in the amputation of an arm or leg is occasioned when the skin is cut, and the subsequent cutting of the muscles and the sawing of the bone, in which all the pain is popularly supposed to be centered, amount to little in comparison.

All Modern Improvements.

Sparky and Plug had just returned from a glorious spin in Sparky's brand-new automobile, and as they sat in Sparky's library they talked of many things despite the noise Sparky's youngsters were making.

"Tell you what, Sparky," said Plug, "you've a fine, healthy lot of children. By the way, how many have you?"

"Seven," said Sparky, proudly.

"You know, I've often wondered," went on Plug, "whether you people with so many children have any particular favorites?"

"Well, no," answered Sparky, hesitatingly; "that is to say, you know, we don't have favorites exactly, but of course you can't help being more interested in this year's model than in some of the earlier ones!"

No Fear of Father Dying Young.

When little Dora climbed up to her father's knee, it was quite obvious that some deep problem was troubling her mind. Presently she unburdened herself of the momentous question "Papa," she asked, "was it a very wise person who said 'The good die young?'"

"Yes," replied her father. "I suppose he must have been very, very wise."

"Well," said the child, after meditating for some time on the import of his answer, "I'm not really so much surprised about you; but mummy—no, I don't see how mummy managed to get grown up!"

ULSTER, GARDEN OF IRELAND

Writer Pays High Tribute to the Scotch-Irish Who Have Made the Country What It Is.

It would not surprise me in the least if the late J. P. Morgan had the blood of the Ulster-Scot in his veins, as your correspondent hints at, says the writer of a letter to the editor of the New York Tribune. The Scotch-Irish were even more Scotchish than the Scotch themselves—stern, shrewd, energetic and thoroughly reliable.

When James VI, of Scotland—James I of England—offered facilities for the settlement of Ulster, thousands of Scots availed themselves of the chance, and by their energy helped to transform that district into a garden of Ireland.

Belfast, one of the most peaceful and prosperous cities in the world, is nothing more or less than a second Glasgow.

To Scotland, indirectly, to Ulster directly, we are indebted for such men as Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, James Buchanan, John C. Calhoun, Chester A. Arthur, T. A. Hendricks, Horace Greeley, C. D. McCutcheon, James G. Blaine, Charles Foster, Samuel H. Grey and many others who helped to make the United States what she is today.

Robert Fulton, though an Irishman of Scotch descent—his father being forced out of Scotland in Cromwell's time—is scarcely an Ulster-Scot. But, then, if it were not for the Livingston family, who were descended from the kings, nobles and lords of Scotland, Fulton could never have accomplished what he did.

HELPLESS IN SNAKES' COILS

Fisherman in Order to Escape Threatened Death From Reptiles Rolls in Fire.

George Ensor, a business man of this city, while fishing near Mountandale, a Piedmont, W. Va., dispatch to the New York Herald states, was attacked by snakes, which came from a rotten log on which he was sitting, and before he could beat them off the reptiles had entwined themselves about him, binding his arms, hands and feet. The snakes, more than a dozen in number, measured from four to six feet in length.

Mr. Ensor, after vainly endeavoring to work his arms and feet loose, had the presence of mind to roll down a hill into a fire he had built to cook his breakfast. His clothes caught fire and the snakes, scorched and sizzling, untwined from his body and made for the old log. Mr. Ensor ran to the stream and threw himself into the water, extinguishing his burning clothes. His body, arms and face were severely burned, but he managed to make his way to Mountandale, where physicians say he has a chance for recovery.

I could hardly get out of bed in the morning my back was so stiff and sore and at times my whole body was lame. My kidneys acted too freely, also. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I finally got some. It took only a few doses of Doan's to regulate my kidneys and in a few days the soreness and pain had left my back."

MEN AND WOMEN

IN FIGHTING TRIM

They Keep To The Top Notch of Health

The spirit of the times demands perfect health and nerve, and keep them up to the highest degree of efficiency.

Wise men and women have learned that it does not pay to allow health or nerves to run down and are quick to take advantage of Nature's greatest red blood and nerve tonic, Phosphated Iron from the minute they feel they are slowing up.

Whatever your work may be there is no reason why it should continue to tire you; work should only use the right amount of your energy. It is trying to work on your nerves and forcing yourself that wastes your strength, runs you down, gives you those restless nights, loss of appetite and indigestion, when you get up in the morning as tired as when you went to bed. There is no sense in anyone being a victim of ill health, poor blood, over work, nerves or the blues when Phosphated Iron will afford such prompt and permanent relief.

All over the country men and women in every walk of life lay their good health, strength and nerves of iron to the use of Phosphated Iron, the red blood and nerve builder and it will also put you on your feet, make you feel like a live one. It produces results that last, that's what counts, no "ifs" about it.

To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only. Do not take pills or tablets. Insist on capsules.

W. F. Hennings, the druggist and leading druggists everywhere.

Sour stomach, clogged up bowels, headaches, foul breath, are evils of constipation. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea purifies the stomach and relieves constipation—a medicine the whole family should take. 35c. Hennings' Drug Store.
